An important note for International Students (students holding valid Study Permits) who are considering a Leave of Absence:

LEGAL STATUS

International students are expected to be actively enrolled in their program of study during the validity of their study permit. Taking a gap/leave may affect your legal status and especially your eligibility to stay or work in Canada.

Under current immigration regulations, a student who takes a leave/gap from their studies will still be considered as actively enrolled if the leave/gap is authorized by the school and lasts less than 150 days. In this case, the student does not lose their legal status. They can remain in Canada but they are prohibited from working.

If a student does not resume their studies within 150 days, they should do either of the following:

- Change their legal status to Visitor (apply for Visitor Permit)
- Leave Canada

An authorized leave of absence that lasts less than 150 days will not affect your eligibility for the post-graduation work permit if you had a valid reason for taking the leave/gap.

University of Toronto Health Insurance Program (UHIP)

As an international student, you are only eligible for four months (one semester) of UHIP coverage while on a Leave of Absence. If you are requesting a Leave of Absence for one year, you will need to secure private health insurance to cover the duration of your Leave of Absence.

For more information, please contact the UHIP office directly.
